

Editor's Note

It is important that the world is in the process of rapid developments and improvements associated with especially employment of information. At this point, reaching to desired information rapidly and sharing newly obtained information – knowledge with the society have been important aspects for individuals. This factor has affected also the role of information in improving the scientific literature and because of that multidisciplinary research approaches have gained more popularity in last decade. Now, it is widely known that the information has not a unique field to be associated with. Rather, the information is accepted widely as an element that can be shaped according to different fields, which directs our minds and whole energy to use it as multidisciplinary.

Journal of Multidisciplinary Developments (JOMUDE) opens its doors to the scientific audience of both Natural Sciences and Social Sciences. With its first volume and issue, JOMUDE provides a collection of book reviews, a short research paper and also regular research papers to introduce remarkable studies – works to the associated literatures. It is important that our main objective as the JOMUDE team is to support literature of both Natural Sciences and Social Sciences by enabling researchers, academicians, and students to publish their works and achieve that in a medium of peer reviewed, double blind, open access scientific journal.

JOMUDE includes open access publishing of book reviews, works in progress papers, short research papers, and regular research papers. For more information regarding to submission and details regarding to the whole process till a possible publication, please visit the journal Web site at <http://www.jomude.com> . You can also refer to the information provided previously under front pages.

Thank you very much for your interest in JOMUDE. Enjoy reading!
